

Saved

Deaf Havana

I had a plan, you'd had enough of working late.
So I took my mother's car and the last money I saved.
Blind to our tactless egos, the world was ours to take,
We had it figured out, yeah we had it figured out, and we would sing...You came from a good home, and a family that helped you through.
Forever in the shadow of a brother you felt you could never live up to.
And I watched you tailor yourself to satisfy the mood,
I had you figured out, yeah I had you figured out. But now you lie awake,
And you curse the world for all of your mistakes
And you should of known that you'd fuck it up some day
You try to wish your careless heart away but it's not enough,
It's not enough, you won't be saved
We grew apart, I had to leave for foreign shores
It seems that the plan I had worked out better than I thought
I swear you resented all the opportunities I had
So you filled that hole with women and alcohol But now you lie awake
And you curse the world for all of your mistakes
And you should of known that you would fuck it up some day
And you try to wish your careless heart away
It's not enough, it's not enough
You won't be saved You're just a child in your father's eyes
Now with a child of your own
Oh how you've grown
Now you lie awake
And you curse the world for all of your mistakes
And you should of known that you would fuck it up some day
And you try to wish your careless heart away
It's not enough
You won't be saved

Lyrics provided by <https://www.songarea.com/>